An Enduring Guardian is someone of your choice whom you appoint to make decisions on your behalf concerning your health and wellbeing when you become incapable of, or not in a position to do so yourself. In this article, we will look at:

- the powers of your Enduring Guardian;
- when the appointment of your Enduring Guardian becomes operable;
- appointment of Guardians jointly or severally;
- what happens if your Guardian dies;
- how to make an Appointment of Guardian;
- revocation of an Appointment of Guardian;
- benefits of an Appointment of Guardian; and
- the difference between a Power of Attorney and an Appointment of Guardian.
